You can also spool the windows with the long water tube you can find in the outdoor shower
Flush with lots of cold water until all soap is gone

To leave the beach look for the sign E 43

Instruct this to all in the house especially older children. Small children should never play at the beach without surveillance.

Bathing at the North sea can be dangerous although the beach at Slettestrand is relatively safe and secure waters.

So always follow the bath Rules.

If wind and stream is to strong, do not enter the water.

Never swim - if a few stroke always along the coast.

Never walk more than 5-10 m into to the water.

There is a first sandbank around 20-30 m out but never try to go further out.

So do not swim just jump in the water and get up.

Keep small kids in the hands – The west-coast water is not a playground there can be holes in the ground and a strong under water stream can take you out.

Never bath alone.

Never bath until 1 hour after eating.

Only a fool do not fear the West coast water and treat the rules with disrespect.
